On behalf of Touro Law Center, it is my pleasure to welcome you to the 2012 Conference of Religiously Affiliated Law Schools and to thank you for your participation.

The biennial conference was initiated in 1996, and past conference have been hosted by Marquette, Regent, St. John’s, Pepperdine, Notre Dame, Baylor, Boston College, and Brigham Young University. We are honored to continue this tradition, and we are pleased that this year’s event is being held at a school with a Jewish affiliation.

Building on the success of past conferences, this year we will explore the theme: “The Place of Religion in the Law School, the University, and the Practice of Law.” Sessions at the conference will draw from a variety of perspectives, including those of leading scholars from across the country, representing a wide range of universities and religious traditions, who will engage in conversation with prominent judges and public interest lawyers.

In addition to panel discussions, the conference will feature keynote addresses by the Honorable Loretta A. Preska, Chief Judge of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, and attorney Nathan Lewin, nationally renowned for advocating religious liberties.

We anticipate a fruitful exchange of ideas and perspectives on the role of religion in law, higher education, and society. We look forward to a meaningful and thought provoking event that will foster future discussion of these important issues.

Sincerely,
Samuel J. Levine
Professor of Law and Director of the Jewish Law Institute

Mr. Lewin comes from a renowned line of Polish rabbis. Three of his grandparents were murdered in the Holocaust. His parents fled with him, when he was 3 years old, from Poland to Lithuania in September 1939, and his mother obtained for the family the first transit visas issued for Jewish refugees by Chiune Sugihara, the Japanese Consul in Kovno, who rescued several thousand Jews by issuing such visas. The Lewin family traveled by trans-Siberian railroad to Vladivostok and then to Kobe, Japan. They arrived in the United States in 1941. Mr. Lewin attended Ramaz School and Yeshiva University High School and College. He then studied at Harvard Law School and was a Law Clerk to Justice John M. Harlan of the Supreme Court. He served in the Department of Justice as Assistant to the Solicitor General and as Deputy Assistant Attorney General in the Civil Rights Division and spent one year as a Deputy Assistant Secretary of State in charge of visas and passports. Mr. Lewin currently teaches Supreme Court litigation at Columbia Law School and has taught at Georgetown, Harvard, University of Chicago, and George Washington Law Schools. He has presented 28 oral arguments in the Supreme Court of the United States, including the three most important cases involving Jewish religious rights argued in the past 30 years. He has been listed in four separate categories in “The Best Lawyers in America” for more than 25 years, and was recognized by The Washingtonian in 1992 as No. 2 in “Washington’s 50 Best Lawyers” and by the Legal Times in 2008 as one of “Washington’s Greatest Lawyers of the Past 30 Years.” Mr. Lewin was President of the Jewish Community Council of Greater Washington from 1982 to 1984 and is on the Boards of Agudath Israel and the Orthodox Union. ABOUT TOURO LAW

TOURO LAW CENTER

Touro College Jacob D. Fuchsberg Law Center offers a progressive curriculum rich with practical learning opportunities to a student body that is engaged in the community and world around them. Taking advantage of our location adjacent to both a federal and a state courthouse, we offer innovative courses for law students that bring together the academy, the bar and the bench to ensure that students are prepared for the practice of law.

Our law school has a rich tradition of teaching the moral and ethical obligations of law while promoting social justice and community service. And, though our commitment to public service is strong, our graduates go on to achieve distinction in virtually every field of law as well as a wide range of business, corporate, government, public service and public interest positions.

Touro Law is home to the William Randolph Hearst Public Advocacy Center. The only one of its kind in the nation, the Center provides students with hands-on legal experience while working for non-profit organizations. The Center has had an impact on legal training, social justice and the lives of countless individuals in and beyond the local community.

The student body at Touro Law is a passionate and diverse group of people who deeply value the opportunity for a legal education. Our students are intensely motivated and driven to succeed, while remaining truly supportive of each other. They echo the tone for the school’s collegial atmosphere, set by the open door policy of both administration and faculty.

Our distinguished faculty is comprised of approximately 50 full-time members who are actively engaged in research, making noteworthy contributions to legal scholarship, and law reform. They bring talent and experience to the classroom as well as a genuine passion for teaching. In addition, they’re uniquely dedicated to the success of our student body – priding themselves on accessibility while creating an open and cooperative learning environment that is dynamic and enriching.

Touro Law Center is a unique law school. We are a relatively young school committed to the type of innovation that will ensure our graduates are prepared to practice, yet grounded in rich traditions with a network of alumni of whom we are very proud and a community of faculty, students and staff that care about each other and the world around them. We are a law school that is proud of our roots and tradition while remaining excited about our future.
The Judaica Collection, with materials representing Jewish law, history, and philosophy from biblical times to the present day, supports Law Center courses on Jewish law, as well as the Jewish Law Institute and the Institute on Holocaust Law and International Human Rights.

Included in the collection are editions of important Jewish texts in English and Hebrew, including the:
- Tanakh or Jewish Bible
- Mishna
- Babylonian and Jerusalem Talmudim
- Mishneh Torah of Maimonides
- Turim
- Shulhan Arukh and halakhah (legal literature)
- Commentaries, novellae, and responsa of acknowledged Rabbinic scholars

Modern works on issues of Jewish law, philosophy, and history are also available. The collection includes extensive materials related to anti-semitism, with a special emphasis on the Holocaust, as well as the Lillie Goldstein Collection, a traveling library that may be borrowed by law schools without such resources wishing to offer courses in Jewish law.

Generous grants from the CAMBR Foundation and the Lucius N. Littauer Foundation have greatly enriched the collection of both Jewish law and Holocaust materials.

Located on the third floor of the library, the inviting Judaica Room provides a quiet and hospitable place for study and reflection, with a casual arrangement of comfortable couches and chairs near two banks of windows and numerous study tables adjacent to the stack area.

While the primary purpose of the collection is to support the research needs of our faculty and students, scholars and members of the Jewish community who wish to study the rich treasures of the Jewish heritage are welcome to use the collection during regular library hours.

For more information about the collection or to request a visit, contact Beth Mobley, Associate Director and Curator of Special Collections at bmobley@tourolaw.edu or call (631) 761-7152 or Samuel J. Levine, Professor of Law and Director of the Jewish Law Institute at (631) 761-7138 or email slevine@tourolaw.edu.
The Lillie Goldstein Judaica Collection, with its unique designation as a traveling library, was developed with the generous support of the Lillie Goldstein Charitable Trust to further Touro Law Center's goal of presenting Jewish thought and learning, particularly the Jewish legal tradition, within a scholarly framework.

Established to make available to law schools without Judaica collections the resources necessary to offer courses in Jewish law, the collection of more than 420 titles in over 700 volumes in Hebrew and/or English includes duplicates of the core halakah (Jewish law) materials found in the Gould Law Library's Judaica Collection, as well as other materials chosen to enrich the study of Jewish law.

Samuel J. Levine, Professor of Law and Director of the Jewish Law Institute at Touro Law Center, is the primary advisor. His role in shaping the collection is a reflection of one of the Institute's goals: to promote the teaching of Jewish law in American law schools. Professor Chaim Povarsky, former Library Director Daniel Jordan, and Judaica Librarians Lois Markowitz and Carol S. Joseph made the initial selections. Ms. Markowitz and Ms. Joseph managed the collection until their retirements. Under the leadership of Library Director April Schwartz, Beth Mobley, Associate Director, Special Collections Curator & Head of Collection Development, works with other current library staff members to evaluate and enrich this valuable resource.

The Lillie Goldstein Judaica Collection is offered as an interlibrary loan for a semester or for an academic year. The only obligation is the return postage. Borrowers to date include: ITT-Chicago Kent College of Law, University of Utah School of Law, Boston College Law School, Nova Southeastern University Shepard Broad Law Center, University of Colorado School of Law, Pepperdine University School of Law, University of Tulsa College of Law, and American University, Washington College of Law.

The Jewish Law Institute offers a scholarly and intellectual framework for the academic study of the Jewish legal experience. Founded in prophetic notions of social justice, this experience is one of the foundations of Western civilization, particularly Western legal systems. The Institute acts as a center for the study and teaching of Jewish law throughout the United States, bringing together leading scholars, teachers, and lawyers and acting as a clearinghouse for new ideas and independent research. Its major goal is to make the Jewish legal tradition an active force in legal scholarship.

Toward that goal, the Institute:
• Offers courses in Jewish law and Jewish legal philosophy, and conducts special programs of research, publications, and lectures.
• Conducts conferences that focus on a wide range of subjects of interest to Jewish legal scholars.
• Assists other law schools in offering courses in Jewish law by advising professors who wish to teach these courses about topics and sources in Jewish law, and providing them with syllabi of courses in Jewish law.
• Is helping the Touro Law library develop the Law Center’s Mobile Judaica Collection, which is loaned to law schools across the country that wish to offer courses in Jewish law, for a semester or one year.
